

Welcome to

K'esugi Ken Walk-In Campground

in Denali State Park

When humans gather we call it a family, a crowd, or even a party. We seek out others for security, society, survival, and more.

A Ballet of Swans ① ②

The public-use cabins at The Swans give the privacy of four walls and a roof over your head. Reservations can be made at dnr.alaska.gov/parks/cabins/.

A Congregation of Eagles ③ ④

The Eagles only has two campsites and tends to be quieter. So, if you want to soar with the eagles, rather than howl with the wolves, this is the campsite is for you.

An Unkindness of Ravens ⑤ ⑥ ⑦

Autonomy and community in one location: this is what you'll find at The Ravens. You can cackle and caw without bothering your neighbors, but remember, ravens roost at night.

A Sleuth of Bears ⑧ ⑨ ⑩

Papa bear, campsite eight, is semi-private, but mama and baby bear, campsites nine and ten, are a bit closer together for comfort and security.

A Pack of Wolves ⑥

Wolves are social animals, so this group site is the perfect place for an extended family gathering, a troop of young people, a retreat, or if you just want to camp with a group of friends. Reserve in advance.

Which campsite is best for you and your group?

Look, Listen, and Sniff

You might not see the animal that your campsite is named after, but can you recognize signs that they have been here? Tracks in the mud and snow, feathers or fur in the brush, and even poop are signs that animals are nearby. Remember, they're seeing, hearing, and smelling you.

Legend

- P Parking
- Toilet
- $ Fee Station
- ▲ Walk-In Campsite
- 🏠 Ranger Station
- 🏠 Public-Use Cabin
- 🗑️ Bear-Resistant Trash
- 🚰 Drinking Water
- 🍽️ Picnic Shelter
- 🛤️ Trail

Each campsite has a picnic table, fire ring, and bear-resistant food locker.
The Wolves has four picnic tables and two fire rings.

